Preliminary Conference Program

NYSAM 9th ANNUAL STATEWIDE CONFERENCE “ADDICTION MEDICINE 2013: EMERGING PROBLEMS, CURRENT TREATMENTS”

This conference, which has been designed for physicians, medical students, residents, and fellows, features state-of-the-art presentations highlighting the most recent developments in addiction medicine.

Friday, February 1, 2013

1:00 pm-5:00 pm

Free Public Policy Forum

“Healthcare Reform: Implications for Addiction Medicine”

(Open to medical professionals and others who are interested in this topic)

Keynote speaker, Dr Tom McLellan (Chief Executive Officer, Treatment Research Institute at the University of Pennsylvania and former Deputy Director of Demand Reduction with the Office of National Drug Control Policy) will address the integration of specialty addiction care with mainstream primary healthcare highlighting challenges and strategies/policy to successfully mitigate those challenges with the goal of achieving better access to quality treatment services and better health outcomes.

The program will also include a panel of key government and private sector policy stakeholders who will address the transformation occurring in healthcare resulting from federal and state healthcare reform, Medicaid redesign, and transition to managed care for addiction services. The policy forum agenda and format will facilitate significant dialogue and participation by attendees.

5:00 pm-6:30 pm

Annual NYSAM Meeting

6:30 pm

Networking Reception

Saturday, February 2, 2013

7:00 am to 7:45 am

7:45 am to 8:00 am

Opening Remarks

8:00 am to 9:00 am

Addiction in LGBT Communities and the Crystal Methamphetamine Epidemic

Petros Levounis, MD, MA

The prevalence of substance use disorders in LGBT communities in terms of sexual identity, sexual attraction, and sexual behavior will be presented along with possible explanations of these epidemiological findings. The session will then explore the many facets of the crystal methamphetamine epidemic including its connection with HIV/AIDS and Body Dysmorphic Disorder. We will review the current thinking on psychosocial and pharmacological treatment options, and will critically examine primary and secondary prevention efforts.

9:00 am to 10:00 am Network Therapy: Addiction Treatment in Office Practice
Mark Galanter, MD

Addicted patients present unique problems for the treating clinician: denial and unanticipated patient-generated relapse. Both make treatment difficult to initiate and sustain. Network Therapy is designed to bolster the physician's ability to overcome these troubling problems. It involves engaging several people close to the patient—immediate family members and/or friends to participate at intervals in the ongoing treatment process. The presentation will describe this technique and include video illustrations.

10:00 am to 10:20 am Morning Break

10:20 am to 11:15 am Bath Salts and Pond Cleaner—Designer Drugs or Innocuous Products???
Timothy J. Wiegand, MD

11:20 am to 12:30 pm Breakout Sessions A

Novel Molecules
Thomas Weigand, MD
Lewis Nelson, MD

Alcohol Withdrawal
Stephen Ross, MD

Women & Addiction
Abigail Herron, DO

This workshop will focus on issues specifically relevant to the treatment of women with addictive disorders. Characteristics of substance use disorders in women, physiological effects of use and screening and assessment of Substance Use Disorders in women will be reviewed. Substance Use Disorders in pregnancy and recommendations for the treatment of women with addictive disorders will also be discussed.

12:30 pm to 1:40 pm Luncheon “NYSAM Business Overview”
Dr. Gregory Bunt, MD

1:40 pm to 2:30 pm Cannabinoid Research Studies
Ziva Cooper, MD

The number of individuals with marijuana-use disorders is over twice that of any other illicit substance, with more people seeking treatment for marijuana dependence than for any other illegal drug in the US. Marijuana abstinence proves to be a challenge for a subset of the population and pharmacological treatments to help patients achieve and maintain abstinence are lacking. This presentation will describe findings from controlled human laboratory studies designed to investigate the effectiveness of potential pharmacotherapies to attenuate marijuana withdrawal symptoms and relapse to marijuana use.

2:30 pm to 3:30 pm Adolescents: They Are Not Just Small Adults
Richard Rosner, MD

93:30 pm to 4:40 pm Breakout Sessions B

Buprenorphine 201 Update

Edwin A. Salsitz, MD, FASAM

Updates on Buprenorphine treatment in pregnancy, and the issue of hepatotoxicity will be discussed. The role and level of counseling will be reviewed. Data on diversion and misuse, and how to minimize diversion will be presented.

Overdose Prevention with Community Based Naloxone: An Update

Sharon Stancliff, MD

In 2006, it became legal for non-medical people to carry and use Naloxone to prevent an opioid overdose from becoming fatal in New York State. To date, over 90 programs in NYS have registered and overdose reversals have happened in a variety of settings including drug treatment. Nationally Naloxone distribution has become mainstream; federal agencies are now promoting this intervention. Participants will be updated on local and national implementation and will learn how their own agencies can become involved.

Physician Health Programs

Jeffrey Selzer, MD

4:45 pm to 5:00 pm Wrap Up. Final Announcements. CME Certificate Distribution.
